ABSTRACT

Based upon a questionnaire survey of two-year institutions conducted by the American Association of Community and Junior Colleges (AACJC), this directory provides information on 1,235 community, junior, and technical colleges in the United States and its territories, as well as 1976 and 1977 statistics on enrollments and personnel for each. Following introductory material on the trends revealed by the directory, a data summary, suggestions for interpreting the data, and a list of changes in institutions since the previous year are presented. Next, the directory lists each two-year college alphabetically by state or country and provides the following information: location; chief executive officer; telephone number; year college classes began; type of control or affiliation; AACJC membership; state recognition or accrediting agency; type of academic calendar; October 1976 and 1977 full- and part-time and total enrollment; community education enrollment in 1976-77; full- and part-time and total faculty, professional staff, and administrators as of October 1977; and tuition and fees required in 1977-78. Next, tables are presented summarizing enrollment and personnel data by state for all institutions, and for public and independent colleges. Lists of community, junior, and technical college organizations and state administrators for two-year college education, and an alphabetical listing of colleges conclude the directory. (AYC)

INTRODUCTION

As the national clearinghouse for information on community-based education, the American Association of Community and Junior Colleges is frequently asked about enrollments, programs, and other facts about community, junior, and technical colleges. Correspondents and callers are especially interested in trends in college-going—though the questions they ask cover a wide range of topics dealing with almost all aspects of institutional development and programming.

The Association in recent years has created a research office to mine existing government and private data banks—and to initiate data collection efforts of its own. We are now able to provide fact sheets on topics ranging from student costs to kinds of programs offered—and from makeup of enrollments to teaching in the two-year college.

A basic and solid source upon which the research efforts are built is the annual Community, Junior, and Technical College Directory survey—which is reported in the following pages. Data collected for the annual directory suggest trends that may be followed up in other surveys to obtain more detail—in addition to serving as valuable reference information in itself.

The 1978 Directory is no exception. It will give the user a picture of what has happened to enrollments over the past year, the extent of staffing to meet those enrollments, and an idea of trends in costs to those who attend community colleges. Thanks to the cooperation of institutions throughout the United States and even some other countries, the Directory contains the most up-to-date and accurate information available anywhere.

The Directory will show, for example, that enrollments are up considerably over registrations for last year when the numbers leveled off for the first time in about 20 years.

Information collected by the research office suggests that the increase is due in large part to acceleration of participation by older Americans and greater involvement of women. Part-time enrollment also continues to grow.

In addition to statistical information, the Directory provides names and addresses of more than 1200 community, junior, and technical colleges, as well as names of the chief administrative officers. Accreditation and the type of college control are indicated as well.

The Directory also contains names and addresses of state directors of community and junior college education and information on state and regional organizations of two-year institutions. It should be noted that the publication is not an AACJC membership roster. Effort has been made to include all institutions which fit the definition of community-based community, junior, and technical colleges. Institutions included are those that are nonprofit and that are organized on a two-year basis, have regional accreditation and/or state recognition, and offer two-year associate degree programs. The Directory does not include information on proprietary institutions.

We have relied on the colleges for accuracy of information. However, staff have attempted where possible to clarify questionable information or data that appeared to be in error. It is our hope that users will find this publication a reliable and timely source of vital information on America's community, junior, and technical colleges.

The Data/Some Interpretations

Enrollment during the 1977 opening fall term in community, junior, and technical colleges, as shown in Table A below, appears to have stabilized. However, trends that were visible in enrollment patterns are now having a major impact: the enrollment of men and full-time students is decreasing, while the enrollment of part-time students and women is increasing rapidly. Enrollment figures for each institution are reported in Table I of the Directory; data on enrollment by sex are not published by institution but can be summarized. Table B illustrates these enrollment figures. Although the AACJC does not now collect its information on enrollment by age, estimates from other sources indicate that the number of people over 35 years old enrolled in two-year colleges has increased by at least one-third over a two-year period. Enrollment of women over 35 has also increased more rapidly than that of men in the same age category.

According to data received from 1,193 of the 1,235 colleges listed in this Directory, public college enrollment increased from 3,939,173 in the fall of 1976 to 4,160,611 for fall 1977, or 5.6 percent. Independent two-year college enrollment also increased from 145,803 in the fall of 1976 to 149,373 for fall 1977, or 2.5 percent. Combined public and independent two-year college enrollment rose 5.5 percent from 4,084,976 in 1976 to 4,309,984 in 1977. For those institutions from which current enrollment figures were not obtainable, the fall 1976 total enrollment appears in the fall 1977 total enrollment column. All enrollments are given as headcount figures and include only those students enrolled for courses or programs for credit, usually toward an associate degree or certificate. Table C provides information on distribution by size of enrollment.

Increasingly, the colleges report growing participation in service, recreational, and cultural programs that are not part of an academic program. This participation is reported in the Directory as community education enrollment. Because there are no clearly defined registration periods, enrollment figures for these programs are reported for a yearly period, from July 1, 1976 to June 30, 1977. Data on this type of participation may not be routinely collected by some institutions; therefore, the total of 2,852,673 participants during 1976-77 as compared with 3,259,972 during 1975-76 can only be an approximation of this level of enrollment. The difference in the two yearly figures probably does not represent a decline in community education participation, but instead results from a lack of institutional data in this area. Information from a sample survey completed by the National Center for Education Statistics indicates that for the period July 1, 1975 to June 30, 1976 two-year public colleges enrolled 4,123,799 people in non-credit adult education programs. This enrollment represents 47 percent of all such enrollments in all types of institutions. These data illustrate the fairly wide range between approximations of the level of participation in these nontraditional programs.

The Directory also lists the number of faculty, professional staff, and administrators, as defined in the following pages. Table D illustrates changes in this population for the past two fall terms. In some instances, colleges did not report a current figure for these faculty and staff members. Data in Table D are computed from reported figures and therefore differ from the reported figures shown in appendix tables II, III, and IV.

Tuition for the academic year 1977-78 averaged $355.00 for public colleges and $1,685.00 for independent colleges. These mean tuition figures represent increases of 9.9 percent in the public sector and 2.4 percent in the private sector since the previous academic year 1976-77.

As in the past, data for this Directory were collected directly from all two-year institutions. This year, however, each institution received a pre-printed verification form showing the figures reported by the college for the previous year. Corrections for any errors in previously reported data, and explanations for increases or decreases over 10 percent, were requested from each college. It is hoped that the use of this new system eased the reporting requirements and assured increased accuracy of the data.

The Directory includes individual campuses of two-year institutions that are separately summed to arrive at the total number of colleges. Since the method of totaling institutions changed in 1975, differences in the number of colleges from year to year are not solely due to colleges opening or closing. In addition to the method of counting colleges, changes in the total are also caused by mergers, changes in accreditation status, or type of program.

For some institutions, enrollment and other data are reported by campus; for others, the data are aggregated and reported for the college as a whole. A number of colleges offer courses and programs at various centers throughout their communities in secondary schools, churches, and senior centers. Such centers are not included or counted in this Directory.

Enrollment comparisons given in this introduction are based on data as reported for the fall term of 1976 and published in the 1977 Directory. Since the publication of the previous edition, additional information and clarification of enrollment figures have been received, altering slightly the fall 1976 figure as reported in Tables II, III, and IV of this Directory.

Data reported in these appendix tables are actual figures; full-time and part-time enrollments and faculty figures may not equal the reported total since some colleges could not provide full-time and part-time data but reported only total enrollments or total number of staff.

Questions concerning the data reported in the following pages can be referred to the AACJC data office.
